Qqqqqqqqqqq Numb. 6546.

The Daily Courant.

Saturday, October 13. 1722.

London, October 13.

Yesterday arrived a Mail from Holland.

Petersbourg, September 24.

ADVICES from Moscow say, their Czarish Majesties continue still at Derbent: The Cossacks who marched thither by Land, have joined the rest of the Army, and brought thither a great Quantity of Provisions, so that the Muscovites are well provided for some Months with Necessaries of all Kinds.

Turin, Sept. 26. The Prince of Piedmont came the 24th in the Morning from Rivoli to Carpenetto, and the King made him Colonel of the Piedmont Regiment of Dragoons, which is to be named henceforwards the Royal Regiment. In the Afternoon the Cavalry and Dragoons made a Mock-Fight: The Prince commanded the Attack, and the Diversion lasted four Hours.

Geneva, Oct. 7. Advices from Avignon say, that at present there remain only a few sick Persons in the Infirmaries of the City, and in those of the Suburbs; and that good Order is every where observed. The like Advices are received from Mende. From the 22d past the Inhabitants of Provence have received Merchandise from Marseilles, which will shortly be allowed to pass Quarantain in order to be admitted into Languedoc.

Warsaw, Oct. 7. The Grand Diet of this Kingdom was opened the 5th Instant with the usual Ceremonies: The King, accompanied by the Senators, Ministers, and other Persons of Distinction, went to the Cathedral Church of St. John, and heard the Mass of the Holy Ghost; the Sermon was preached by the usual Preacher. As soon as Divine Service was ended, the Deputies took their respective Seats in their publick Chamber, under the Direction of M. Wolski, first Deputy of Wilna and of all Livonia, who by vertue of that Dignity is empowered to perform the Function of Marshal of the Diet; the Count Zavisca, who acted in that Office since the Diet of Grodno being now dead. At the Beginning of the Sessions the Members seem'd to be in a peaceable Disposition, and prepared to elect a Marshal; but the Palatinates of Wilna and District of Lida having given their Votes for Count Ossolinski, Treasurer of the Crown, two Members protested against M. Thyscuhaus's acting as Second Deputy of Wilna. Some Deputies of Little and Great Poland disputed for the Alternative to elect a Marshal from among the Deputies of their respective Provinces, although it be an incontestable Right in the latter. All these Difficulties rendered the first Day's Endeavours towards Business fruitless, and nothing was concluded. Yesterday about Noon the Deputies met again, and M. Wolski attempted to re-collect the Votes for Election of a Marshal; the Deputies of Belsk and Beschlau opposed this, having a Mind to have a Sight of Votes to be allowed to them before further Proceeding; and the Contestations beginning to arise, M. Wolski thought proper to adjourn the Assembly till this Morning. To-Day Count Ossolinski was unanimously chosen Marshal of the Diet by all the Deputies, and having returned his Thanks to the whole Assembly for their Choice of him, he took the usual Oaths, and an Express is sent to the King with an Account of this Election.

Vienna, Oct. 7. The 5th Instant, the Marriage between the Electoral Prince of Bavaria and the Archdutchess Maria-Emilia was publickly solemnized in the Chapel at the Favorita. The Archbishop of this City gave the Benediction, assisted by four Prelates and the Chaplain in Waiting, in Presence of their Imperial Majesties, the Empress Dowager, and and the Archdutchesses, the Ministers, and the Imperial and Bavarian Nobility, as also of the Ladies of the Court and City, who made their Appearance in rich Dresses: The Te Deum was sung, the Trumpets and Kettle-Drums sounded, and the Artillery on the Ramparts discharged. The Company dined afterwards in publick at the Palace, and a fine Serenade was played towards the Evening. Yesterday Morning their Imperial Majesties and the new-married Couple went to the Chapel at the Favorita, and heard Mass celebrated by the Archbishop of this City; they afterwards dined and supped together, and at Evening saw the new Opera that was made in Honour of the Bride and Bridegroom. At Noon the Electoral Princess of Bavaria gave Audience to Count Harach, Knight of the Golden Fleece, and Provincial Marshal of Lower-Austria, and also to three of the eldest Members of each State. The Marshal made a fine Speech of Congratulation on the Part of the four States of Lower-Austria, and presented the Nuptial Gift: The Princess answer'd in very gracious Terms, and admitted them all to kiss her Hand. The Emperour's Chamberlain the Count the Thirtheim, President of the Upper-Austria, made also an elegant Speech on the same Occasion, and presented a like Nuptial-Gift; to whom the Princess likewise answered with great Benignity. The Present made by the States of Lower-Austria consists of a Purse, to which several Diamonds were pendant on the Outside, and containing 4000 Ducats of Gold; that of the States of Upper-Austria was pretty near the same. This Day at Four in the Afternoon, the Electoral Prince and his Spouse set out from hence on their Journey for Bavaria; they are to be met on the Confines of that Electorate by the Electors of Bavaria and Cologn, and by them accompanied to Munich. The Diet at Presbourg holds out still, but after many Debates, the States begin at length to capitulate with the Imperial Commissaries, endeavouring to obtain good Terms for themselves and Families.

Hambourg, Oct. 13. 'Advices from Dantzick 'say, that the Russian Commissary who resides 'there has received new Orders from the Regency 'at Petersbourg, to buy a great Quantity of Corn, 'and to cause it to be sent thither as soon as pos'sible by Muscovite Ships that are expected from 'Revel. The Accounts that are received at Mos'cow from Astracan concerning the Czar's Persian 'Enterprizes, begin to be favourable, seeing Part 'of the Russian Army has got firm footing in 'Georgia and obliged the Tartars to retire; which 'Success however, has cost the Czar somewhat 'Dear, his Troops having met with a scurvy Re'ception near Derbent. It is certain, the Turks 'are hearty Enemies to this Progress of the Mus'covites, covites, and 'tis presumed this War will not be suddenly ended: The Czar perceives this well enough; and for that Reason has lately sent for so many Troops, and for Prince Menzikoff also. The Affairs of Poland seem perplexed: The old Quarrel still subsists, General Fleming will not resign the chief Command of the regular Troops, which consist at present of 15000 Men; over whom neither the Crown-General nor his Lieutenant have the least Power: For this Reason, the Diet which is appointed to be held the 15th Instant will probably not meet, the Poles being resolved not to hear any thing of Fleming, and the other Articles that are intended to be proposed to them in that Assembly. Letters from Sweden say, that M. de Bestuchef the Russian Minister has very great likelihood of succeeding in his Negociations as soon as the King arrives, who is daily expected at his Capital.

Hague, Oct. 16. The States of Holland sat later the 13th Instant than usual, and came to an unanimous Resolution to continue their Regency as it subsists at present, without making any Alteration, and took an Oath of Secrecy with respect to the Methods they shall think proper to make use of for the Preservation of their Government: They resolved also, to appoint two Deputations, one to Guelderland, Utrecht, and Overyssel, and the other to Zealand, to prevent if possible the electing the young Prince of Nassaw-Orange to the Dignity of Stadholder of Guelderland, and to divert the Inclinations of the rest of the Provinces that shew a Disposition to the like Election. The Deputation to the former sets out from hence To-morrow; the Time for the Departure of the other is not yet fixt, it being judged proper to write first of all to the States of Zealand: The States of Holland have ordered their Resolution to be made publick. One of the two East India Ships which usually compose the Rear-Guard of the Fleet is arrived at the Texel. The Prince of Hesse-Philipsdahl, who is in the Service of France, set out from hence Yesterday to be present at the King's Coronation.
